

Contents

Why This Book x

I. The Thinking That Produces Things to Say... 1

Teaching Ideas 1–6: Catching Students Thinking 1

1. Sizing You Up 5
2. Eavesdropping and Other Everyday, Familiar Forms of Inquiry 6
3. Difficult Riddles 8
4. Maker of the Rules 10
5. The Reflective Journal 12
6. A Flow Chart of Inquiry 13

Teaching Ideas 7–13: In-Class “Think Tanks”—

Supervised Practice in College-Level Inquiry 15

7. The Initial Think Tank 16
8. Subsequent Think Tanks 19
9. Pulling for More—By Honoring a Student’s Thinking 25
10. Pulling for More—By Using Tuneless Background Music 27
11. Pushing for More—By Playing Devil’s Advocate 28
12. A Field Trip to the Library (The Larger World of “Grist”) 30
13. Group Inquiry (A Think Tank Variant) 30

Teaching Ideas 14–20: Teaching Inquiry, Form by Form 31

14. Power Summary 33
15. Rank-Ordering Summaries 33
16. From Jumbled Array to Synthesis 33
17. The Phony Lecture and the Phony Reading 35
18. Writing in the Margin—
Summary, Synthesis, and Critique Combined 38
19. The Personal Essay 41
20. The Big Paper 42

II. Communicating One's Thinking	49
Teaching Ideas 21–25: Making the Transition from Writing-for-Thinking to Writing to Report One's Thinking	49
21. Taking a Stand against Pretending and Oversimplifying	49
22. Organization Challenges	52
23. An Organization Checklist	54
24. A Menu of Types of Organization	55
25. Putting It All Together	58
Teaching Ideas 26–28: Teaching Drafting	59
26. Banning Outlines, Dictionaries, and Grammar Handbooks	59
27. Letter Writing Instead	60
28. Freewriting	61
Teaching Ideas 29–38: Teaching Revision	62
29. Encouraging/Requiring Revision	62
30. Giving It a Rest	63
31. Eye Exercises	63
32. The Mutual Aid Society	66
33. Revision "Cells"	67
34. The Lighter Side of Imprecision	67
35. Enlarging the Student's Repertoire of Devices	69
36. Naming One's Models of Style	71
37. Ben Franklin's Exercise	72
38. The Secret of Life	73
Teaching Ideas 39–43: Dealing with Grammar	75
39. Grammar Self-Assessment	77
40. "Giving Reason" to Error	78
41. Speaking It Instead	79
42. A Spelling Self-Assessment for the Age of Spell Checkers	80
43. Proofreading Backward	81

III. Two or Three Important Matters Not Yet Addressed	83
Teaching Ideas 44–46: Building Credibility	83
44. Setting an Example	83
45. Guests Representing Students’ Futures	84
46. Memorable Quotes	86
Teaching Ideas 47–51: Two-Wayness, Part I— Students’ Feedback to You	88
47. What You Would Say, What You Would Not Say	89
48. The Reusable Feedback Form	89
49. Drawing Inquiry	90
50. Quotes of the Day—Milked	92
51. Miscellaneous Feedback Prompts for One-Time Use	93
Teaching Ideas 52–56: Two-Wayness, Part II— Your Feedback to Students	93
52. Keeping Letter Grades to Yourself	94
53. Varying Your Feedback Roles	94
54. First Things First	98
55. Saving Time	98
56. Postscripts	99
IV. Five Sequences: Ways to Design a Whole Course	101
The Moratorium Sequence	103
The Building Sequence	107
The “Amazing Disappearing Teacher” Sequence	111
The Individualized Sequence	115
The Sequence of Teachable Moments	119
Works Cited	123
Author	125