Approaches to Teaching the Middle English Pearl

Edited by Jane Beal and Mark Bradshaw Busbee

“The volume is very well organized, and its usefully varied contents offer essays that should appeal both to medievalists and nonmedievalists teaching the course in surveys.”

—Randy Schiff

University at Buffalo

State University of New York

The richly allegorical poem Pearl was likely written by the anonymous author who penned Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. This volume offers interdisciplinary tools for teaching critical issues associated with the poem, such as its authorship, sources and analogues, structure and language, and literary context.

Deep Reading
Teaching Reading in the Writing Classroom

Patrick Sullivan, Howard Tinberg, and Sheridan Blau, editors

This book argues that college-level reading must be theorized as foundational to any understanding of college-level writing. Measurements of reading abilities show a decline nationwide among most cohorts of students, so the need for writing teachers to thoughtfully address the subject of reading, especially in grades 6–14, has become increasingly urgent.

Contributors to this collection offer an antidote to the current reductive understanding of reading that views readers as passive recipients of information. These authors (1) define the challenges to integrating reading into the writing classroom, (2) develop a theory of reading as a specific type of inquiry and meaning-making activity, and (3) offer practical approaches to teaching deep reading in writing courses that can be put immediately to use in the classroom.
